"The Wirt. is a multi-platform publisher of high quality print and digital media on a variety of topics. " "To get the latest news you need to follow us on Facebook. " "It's free and only takes a few minutes. Do you already follow us?" Q: Magento 2 how to use view.phtml to print data in the page I am new in Magento 2.2.3. I wanted to use view.phtml in my page. I have create the view.phtml in the theme\Magento_Checkout\templates\view.phtml. But I am not getting the data from view.phtml. I can print the data in the page. How can I print this data to view.phtml using $block->getData(). A: Magento uses block design pattern, so you should not be creating your view.phtml files. What you can do is create a module for that. Create the module create layout\your_module.xml create src\your_module\view\frontend\layout\your_module.xml create view\your_module\view\frontend\templates\your_module\view.phtml add the view.phtml to your module And this way you can use $block->getData() to get data from your view.phtml files. The comments on yesterday's post made me think again about how badly the NBN is promoted by the media. Lately the media is regularly told by the government and the NBN about the merits of the NBN. And the media usually prints that in most of their stories. And in so doing they often end up portraying the NBN as a great benefit to Australia. But the truth is that what we are seeing from the other end of the spectrum is even more damaging. Those who oppose the NBN are indeed criticised for their views but we see constant pressure to change those views to make them fit the NBN mantra. For example, we see media quotes from the far right about how they would rather go back to the old days of reliance on the internet to get medical information. Or other quotes from
